Memories of Yesterday™

When English-born Mable Lucie Attwell was young, she created enchanting stories and pictures about children. She sold her first illustration at 16, and her first children's book was issued in 1905. Throughout her six decade career, she portrayed children in all their innocence and wisdom, using her own daughter, Peggy, as her inspiration. In 1921, she was commissioned to illustrate J.M. Barrie's "Peter Pan and Wendy," which became one of the most famous books of all time. Even the children of the Royal Family had nursery sets and china designed by Mabel Lucie. Enesco has captured the lively spirit of Mabel Lucie Attwell's art in the "Memories of Yesterday"™ collection, crafted of exquisite porcelain bisque. They are truly gifts to treasure forever . . .
